JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

CIVIL ACTION COMPLAINT

I. JURISDICTION AND VENUE

1. Jurisdiction in this Honorable Court is based on federal question conferred by 28 U.S.C. §1331 and 18 U.S.C. §1961 seq.; supplemental jurisdiction over state law claims is granted by 28 USC §1367.
2. Venue appropriately lies in this district as the events giving rise to this claim occurred here, at least one Defendant maintains a principal place of business here, and at least one Defendant resides here.

II. PARTIES

3. Plaintiff, Christopher W. Zelov, is an adult individual currently residing at the above captioned address.

4. Defendant, Paul Singer, doing business as Singer Financial Corp. (“Singer”), is an adult individual currently residing at the above captioned address. At all relevant times, Singer was President and Treasurer of Singer Financial Corp., which operated as a alter ego to Singer.

5. Defendant, Singer Financial Corp., is a private financial institution and a corporation duly existing under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, with its principal place of business at the above captioned address.

III. OPERATIVE FACTS

6. In or about 2010, Plaintiff was in the process of getting divorced and was in need an of equity loan for both personal purposes and business development.

7. On or about December 30, 2010, Plaintiff entered into a financing agreement with Defendants for a loan of approximately $130,000. (Exhibit A – Loan Agreement) (“Loan Agreement”). Defendants drafted the Loan Agreement.

8. Per the terms of the Loan Agreement, Plaintiff was to make monthly payments of $1,750 for sixty months with the entire balance due in full on the 60th month. Plaintiff was charged an interest rate of 14.00% per annum.

9. Upon information and belief, monthly payments of $1,750 fully covered the interest on the loan and paid down the balance by approximately $235 each month.

10. As security for the loan, Plaintiff executed a mortgage indenture of his property located at 3115 Gallows Hill Rd; Durham, PA 18039 (“Property”). (Exhibit B – Mortgage Indenture) (“Mortgage Indenture”).

11. Plaintiff immediately starting making monthly payments to Defendants of $1,750.

Plaintiff never missed a payment.

12. In or around Winter 2014, Plaintiff decided to sell the Property. Plaintiff advertised and found a potential buyer. However, before Plaintiff could execute a sale to the potential buyer, Plaintiff had to pay Defendants' loan in order to remove the Mortgage Indenture on the Property.

13. In April 2014, Plaintiff approach Defendants about paying off the remaining balance. Upon information and belief, the remaining balance was approximately $121,000.

14. However, Defendants, upon realizing that Plaintiff had a potential buyer and needed to move quickly in order to remove the Mortgage Indenture, demanded $262,000. Defendants provided no explanation as to how this was calculated and why they were demanding so much.

15. Upon information and belief, Defendants took advantage of Plaintiff's situation and need to remove the Mortgage Indenture in a timely fashion in order to avoid losing the potential buyer.

16. In fact, Defendants even threatened to foreclose on Plaintiff's Property if Plaintiff did not pay $262,000 to remove the Mortgage Indenture. Defendants told Plaintiff that they would hold him in default, even though he had never missed a payment.

17. As a result, Plaintiff paid $262,000 to payoff the balance of the loan.

18. Upon information and belief, Defendants regularly take advantage of their clients in a similar fashion to that described above. See Stoss v. Singer Fin. Corp., No. CIV.A.08-5968, 2010 WL 678115, at *3 (E.D. Pa. Feb. 24, 2010); 527-33 Hamilton Street – GP, LLC v. Singer Financial Corp, et al, 2:06-CV-05044 (EDPA 2006); Pasternak, et al v. Burns, et al, 2:06-cv-01818 (EDPA 2006).

19. As a result, Plaintiff experienced significant financial loss and significant emotional distress.
